

Give us some space.

JoyCorps is a nonprofit organization that partners with entrepreneurs in the developing world to build strong businesses and healthy, thriving communities. Currently, two of our partner businesses located in Rajpur, India, are feeling crowded.

JOYN, which produces handmade fashion textiles, and Dehradun Guitar Company, which crafts custom handmade guitars, offer steady jobs, living wages, and hope to local artisans. They currently lease small workspaces and offices spread across six different locations. Space is already tight, but if these businesses continue to grow, they'll soon be bursting at the seams.

We've been able to negotiate a beautiful piece of property rent-free for the next 30 years if we can raise funds to build on the land. That's a big "if." We still need to raise about $60,000.

New facilities for JOYN and Dehradun Guitar Company would provide not only training and workspace for both businesses, but plenty of room for English and computer classes and a small school for the artisans' children. It would also allow them to repurpose existing workspaces into transitional housing for street youth who have left lives of begging to work. Will you help us?
